Is it true that teeth extractions can ruin your face?

Absolutely.

Having extractions is the worst thing you can do to your appearance. In this video Dr Mew talks about the consequences of having teeth extracted:

So what are the consequences?

- Sunken face (your teeth move backwards into gaps created by pulled tooth)
- Narrow smile (smaller palate)

• Less lip support (due to teeth being pushed backwards). This is important. Teeth is what gives you that "full" look in your lips. Many people realise the fear cause of their non-existent lips.

This article shows that actual bone loss can occur when tooth is not replaced:

As bone loss progresses, the loss of facial support is more pronounced:

Can extractions be reversed?

Yes. This is what i am doing right now and what many people have done before. (<http://claimingpower.com/reverse-extract...ss-report/>)

The key is to re-open spaces between extracted tooth by pushing the teeth forward (using braces or expanding appliances ALF/biobloc) and placing implants to prevent further movement (you need around 6mm of space for implants). This video shows exactly how it should be done:

Only problem is finding doctor that is actually willing to open the gaps for you. 80% of orthodontists will turn you down because either they have no experience doing this or will tell you that you need jaw surgery (which is an option as well but costs a lot more).

Statistic shows that 74% of all adults in UK have had at least one tooth extracted at some point in their life.

and instead look for reasons that caused it.

re-opening spaces and moving forward her upper teeth.

Before extractions:

Some time after extractions of upper teeth:

As you can see she lost a lot of lip support (thinner lips), her smile is narrow and dark corridors are visible (narrow palate). Lower part of her jaw still seems okay because she did not have any teeth pulled from there.

She decided to reverse previous orthodontic treatment and re-open the spaces. Here are the results after pushing her upper teeth forward and opening gaps by only 4mm:

Lip support is back. Notice how much volume her upper lip has in comparison to previous pic.
Wider smile (expanded palate)
No more dark corridors
Her face looks aesthetically more pleasing

What about wisdom teeth removal? I heard some models remove wisdom teeth to get their cheeks more hollow

In the past they removed their damn second molars. Wisdom tooth removal makes no difference.

How much time do you have after extraction until the tooth hole is refilled and implants are no longer possible?

Good thing is that teeth move at a really slow rate so there is time to react. I had my lower teeth extracted about 5 months ago and they only closed tiny bit.

No clue if its actually true. I'm more concerned though if removing wisdom teeth make jawline or palate worse. My dentist told me I may eventually have to remove my top and bottom wisdom, which worries me.

Hardly...especially if there is not enough space to begin with.
